This week Arthur's poem reminds that life is a gift of immense value and that we should treasure every moment of it while we still can.

The Gift of Life

How I would like to take that road home
To how life used to be.
Just to see once more the loved ones
Who meant so much to me.
To play once more in those fields of green
And to fish in that peaceful stream.
So wonderful to be free
With no heavy burdens of responsibility.
So many new songs to be sung
In that wonderful world when I was young.
'Thank you, Lord' for the gift of life,
Of all those memories gone by.
So many that made me happy
But some that made me cry.
It so amazing to comprehend
That I will spend forever
With my Lord, my master,
But most of all my friend.

FIRST RESPONDER –I will continue to act as first responder for the time being, so please don't try to contact him, instead contact me in the case of problems.
